

About Cat Welfare Society

Cat Welfare Society is a volunteer-run registered charity in Singapore since 2004. It aims to promote a humane, responsible and informed society in Singapore where cats are cared for responsibly as pets and treated with kindness as community cats. The Society also actively promotes sterilisation as a vital personal responsibility of a cat owner and an effective means to control our community cat population, instead of destruction.

Cat Welfare Society helps people who care and want to sterilise community cats to halt the cycle of breeding and destruction. Through a panel of veterinarian clinics in Singapore that support stray welfare, it is able to offer affordable rates to encourage more people to do their part.

These caring individuals further enjoy a rebate through the Society's reimbursement scheme. Through the reimbursement scheme, around 300 cats are sterilised every month. That is 300 lives improved and thousands of unwanted animals prevented. Communities live harmoniously with community cats through mediation, education and problem solving.
